

Our office often uses email to communicate with patients. The main advantage of email communication is convenience, particularly when scheduling appointments and receiving timely information regarding your care and test results.

This information may be confidential and personal in nature.

Although we are very careful on our end to keep these emails confidential, you should know that email messages in general are not encrypted and may exist indefinitely. We cannot guarantee the security of messages sent outside of the clinic.

The clinic cannot guarantee that your email will be received, read or responded to within any particular period of time. YOU MUST NOT COMMUNICATE WITH THE CLINIC VIA EMAIL FOR MEDICAL EMERGENCIES or other time-sensitive matters.

By signing below, I agree that email may be used to send personal health information to me.
